

AUTHOR: K. Sarkar, B. Bal, R. Mukherjee, S. Chakraborty, S. Saha, A. Ghosh, and S. Parsons

DATE: 2008

PUBLISHER: Journal of Health, Population and Nutrition 26(2):223-231

This research article describes the results of a community-based cross-sectional study conducted among brothel-based sex workers of West Bengal, eastern India, to understand sex-trafficking, violence, negotiating skills, and HIV infection in them. The study highlights that the trafficked victims faced violence, including sexual violence, to a greater magnitude, and that sexual violence was associated with acquiring HIV.

Article can be accessed on-line here in PDF format.

To view PDF documents you will need to download and install Adobe Acrobat Reader. The program is available for free through the Adobe website, download here. More help is available on PDF documents and Adobe Acrobat Reader here