This is a report from a meeting held in Toronto August 2006. The meeting aimed to bring together people who are engaged in work on the intersections between GBV and HIV/AIDS and further discussion of some of the frameworks and entry points currently used in GBV and HIV policy, advocacy and programming. The meeting was convened by the Programme on International Health and Human Rights, Harvard School of Public Health (PIHHR) and the Centre for Women's Global Leadership at Rutgers University (CWGL). The report summarizes discussions, outcomes, and recommendations from the consultation. Participant contact information, the meeting agenda and potential ideas for moving forward are included as annexes.
