

A project in Ethiopia is harnessing a healthy diet as part of the battle against AIDS in the East African country. A well-balanced and vitamin-rich diet is an essential component of HIV/AIDS treatment, something not normally possible for poor people living in many parts of Africa. Read full article here .