

HIV/AIDS and the human psyche

While much research focuses on the psychological implications of being diagnosed with HIV/ AIDS, very little research has been done on the role of gender. Do men and women differ in their response to the diagnosis? And if they differ, what does that tell us?

R

read more...