

Goals unmet on HIV/AIDS treatments, women and children fare worst

International agencies and national governments are failing to meet their goals to provide HIV/AIDS treatments in the developing world, according to a report Tuesday by the International Treatment Preparedness Coalition. The shortfall is particularly egregious when it comes to women and children, the coalition's researchers found. Read more...