

Empowering Women Reduces Domestic Violence and AIDS Risk

A new trial shows empowering African women can help to sharply reduce domestic violence, a key factor in HIV transmission. Poverty, violence and HIV. They're called the triple threat to development. But a new groundbreaking study - called IMAGE - says combining economic help with gender and HIV education has changed the lives of thousands of women.

Read more...